A-ZUY Chambers's New American Encyclopædia The Kentucky African American Encyclopedia University Press of Kentucky The story of African Americans in Kentucky is as diverse and vibrant as the state's general history. The work of more than 150 writers, The Kentucky African American Encyclopedia is an essential guide to the black experience in the Commonwealth. The encyclopedia includes biographical sketches of politicians and community leaders as well as pioneers in art, science, and industry. Kentucky's impact on the national scene is registered in an array of notable figures, such as writers William Wells Brown and bell hooks, reformers Bessie Lucas Allen and Shelby Lanier Jr., sports icons Muhammad Ali and Isaac Murphy, civil rights leaders Whitney Young Jr. and Georgia Powers, and entertainers Ernest Hogan, Helen Humes, and the Nappy Roots. Featuring entries on the individuals, events, places, organizations, movements, and institutions that have shaped the state's history since its origins, the volume also includes topical essays on the civil rights movement, Eastern Kentucky coalfields, business, education, and women. For researchers, students, and all who cherish local history, The Kentucky African American Encyclopedia is an indispensable reference that highlights the diversity of the state's culture and history. The act of 1793 was in general construction much the same as that of 1790, except that the power of rejection was destroyed and the duty of granting patents lodged with the Secretary of State alone. It still required, however, the certificate of the Attorney-General as to the correctness of form to be affixed, and also the signature of the President. This statute provided that interfering applications should be submitted to the arbitration of three persons, one of whom was to be chosen by each of the applicants and the third to be appointed by the Secretary of State. The decision PATENT LAWS AND SYSTEM OF THE UNITED STATES 2311 of this tribunal was to be final, and if either party refused to go into arbitration the patent was to issue to the opposing party. There was no provision for an extension of a patent. During the years from 1790 to 1802 a single clerk in the State Department performed the work of the Patent Office, and a dozen pigeonholes contained the entire records. In that year quite a noted scientific gentleman named Dr. Thornton was appointed by Mr. Jefferson to the office, and he was thereafter styled its "superintendent." For twenty-six years he was the autocrat of the Patent Office, and some amusing stories are related as to his management of its affairs. An official of the department relates that during his superintendence he conceived himself to be invested with much discretionary power, for he held to the maxim that "the patent-law was made solely for the encouragement of authors and inventors, and not to collect revenue." He would therefore exercise his judgment about the payment of fees, the result being that after his death there was quite a deficit between the amount that was and that...
